Period 4

For now what i want to do for my project is to make a trip website where the website will find you a great flight deal to your destination and will find you a hotel and a rental car at the lowest price, because who wants to spend so much money on something they can get for a better price ??

I will provide pictures of each category : (the cities you may want to visit and the hotel and the rental cars) . I think that my website is very useful because I personally would use this type of site and so would others. My site will have a live chat that could help someone find what they're looking for or get help for a problem they might be facing. I will be using html & css and some Java maybe.

The challenges i may be facing is a lot but I might be looking my errors up on google to get it over with.

I don't know how to imagine a design but I would say that firstly, I will add pictures of the destinations possible and then it will take me to a page that has all the category below it (hotel and car) for more info let's stay tuned ..
